

It is the policy of Psychology Consultation Specialists, when a therapist treats children or adolescents, to ask their parents or guardians to agree that most details of what their children or adolescents tell the therapist will be treated as confidential.

However, parents or guardians do have the right to general information about how therapy is going. The therapist may also have to tell parents or guardians about information if their children or others are in any danger. If this situation comes up, the therapist will discuss it with the child or adolescent first before talking to the parents or guardians.

Acknowledgment: I understand that if my child or adolescent is in therapy, the therapist will give me, as the parent or guardian, only general information about therapy, except that the therapist will tell me if he or she finds out from my child or adolescent that they or others are in danger.
